Randolph Mantooth

Mr. Mantooth's portrayal of Firefighter/Paramedic Johnny Gage on NBC's ground breaking series "Emergency!" left an indelible mark on the history of modern Fire Service and EMS. Of the millions who grew up watching the show in the 1970s, many discovered their life's calling and became firefighters, paramedics, ER nurses and ER doctors. Randy has stayed connected to firefighters and paramedics in the years since through lifelong friendships as well as through professional speaking engagements. In recent years, Randy has embarked on a personal mission to reach out to firefighters to increase their awareness of on the job health risks, particularly those risks relating to exposure to CO --carbon monoxide -- a deadly gas that almost claimed his own life while shooting the show. For updates and more information, visit www.RandolphMantooth.com and www.TheSilentKiller.net.

Mike McEvoy :NFPA 1584 Fire Rehab Class

Dr. McEvoy is the EMS Coordinator for Saratoga County, a patient care coordinator in cardiac surgery and Clinical Associate Professor of Critical Care at Albany Medical College in New York where he also co-chairs the Resuscitation Committee. Formerly a forensic psychologist, Mike is a paramedic, firefighter, and EMS editor for Fire Engineering magazine.

OAEMS would like to acknowledge the Masimo Corporation for their generous sponsorship of Randolph Mantooth and Dr. Mike McEvoy.
